Saturday lessons

Combi-Danish

IA Sprog offers courses on Saturdays that combine classroom instruction and distance learning.

Program of instruction

Combi-Danish combines the positive aspects of classroom instruction, such as verbal interaction and social relations, with the advantages of distance learning: flexible and diverse language training tailored to your daily routine and your needs.

Every Saturday we work primarily with oral communication and pronunciation as well as grammar. At home, you work mainly with listening, reading and writing.

Curriculum and individual organization

In class, we follow a fixed curriculum based, among other things, on movies and books.

At home you can work at your own pace and at your own level with the disciplines you personally need to work on, using the extensive electronic materials made available to you as a student at IA Sprog. For example, you can choose to focus on listening if you need to enhance your listening skills, or you can choose to focus, for awhile, on writing, etc.

Material

You will receive various types of materials – including movies, books, pronunciation CDs and listening CDs along with computer programs containing language exercises for your home study.

IT programs are lent either on a DVD or on a laptop.

Scope

Combi-Danish consists of 6 lessons in a classroom (Saturdays from 9:00-14:00) and 9 distance lessons per week.

A module lasts from 8-15 weeks depending on your performance and progression. If you work hard at home, you can pass a module test and continue on to the next module within 8 weeks. If you work less with your exercises at home, a module can take up to 12-15 weeks.

Target group

Combi-Danish is intended typically for individuals who, because of work and/or studies, are not able to participate in regular day or evening classes. Combi-Danish is offered at Danish Education Level 3 (DU3) to people who are able to work independently, are willing to do homework for several hours a week and will have a stable level of attendance. It is an advantage to possess good English language skills because English is used in the beginner classes.
